

There was a little beauty in sight at the recital Friday night, who was the observed of all who were close enough to get a line on her. Her glossy black hair was down in the latest fluff around a neck that was like a Venus's, and surrounding the hair was a chic hat of fancy straw with just a suggestion of a tilt to the left side. Clusters of pale blue plumes fell over this tilt and others nestled beneath the brim at the back. A lace waist with a corset gown of pale blue and straps giving a touch across the shoulders made a stunning costume, and accentuating all were the long lace kid gloves of a shade almost russet, which reached to a dimpled elbow, of which occasional glimpses might be seen. She hasn't been located yet, but she's a visitor who'll have a good time while she's here.

The season of showers is on again. From now till the time that snow flies there will be those sudden gales which bring showers of handkerchiefs, showers of linen, showers of cups, showers of spoons and all kinds of articles in appropriate for really showering. How would it do to try a few brooms on the man for a change?

There is one maiden lady of years (no matter how many), who has certainly had a gay outing during the few brief weeks accorded her away from the sheltering eye of youth. She may not have been sowing "the wild oats of a spinster," but she has acquired a romance and youthfulness in her life after all these many years.

There are disconsolate and almost inconsolable men in town this morning, all of which goes to prove that a girl can handle a goodly number of suitors at one time and still keep her own counsel.
